Nate Larson is full time faculty in the photography department at Maryland Institute College of Art in Baltimore. My work with photographic media, artist books and digital video have been widely shown across the US and featured internationally in Canada, Poland, Russia, Hungary, Australia, the Netherlands, Greece, Belgium, the UK, and Spain. Numerous publications and media outlets have featured my projects, including the New York Times, Utne Reader, Flavorwire, the BBC News Viewfinder, Frieze Magazine, the British Journal of Photography, Marketplace Tech Report, Art Papers, C Magazine, Exposure, The Washington Post, and Afterimage. My photoworks and artist books are included in the collections of the Museum of Fine Arts Houston, the Cleveland Institute of Arts, the Center for Photography at Woodstock, and the Museum of Contemporary Photography Chicago. I currently serve on the board of directors of the Society for Photographic Education.

My current project GEOLOCATION, in collaboration with Marni Shindelman, tracks geotag coordinates associated with Twitter tweets and pairs the text with a photograph of the originating site to mark the virtual information in the real world. New site-specific work from the series was recently completed for Third Space Gallery in New Brunswick, the Walter N. Marks Center for the Arts in California, and the Format International Photography Festival in the UK. Our first New York solo exhibition of the project was at United Photo Industries in January 2012.
